L 1999.001.001 Book	Book, "The Fiddler's Secret," by Lois Walfrid Johnson. "When Mom and Dad (Pastor and Mrs. A. B. Walfrid) lived in Red Wing, my husband and I loved coming there to visit them. After they retired and moved away we kept returning simply to visit your town! Our love for Red Wing was a strong motivation for researching the area in connection with "Race for Freedom." I wanted to make steamboat stops whenever I could, though the one in "The Fiddler's Secret" barely let down the gangplank. I always hoped to come back for a longer stay, but whatever I do needs to fit in the overall story line. This is the last book in the Riverboat Adventure series, but hopefully I'll visit you again in some other other. You might be interested to know people connection with Red Wing. I've mentioned before that Dad was pastor at First Lutheran. At the present time, my husband's nephew, Randy Johnson, is pastor at United Lutheran. Andrea Jorgenson, the artist for my first ten Northwoods novels, is now a Red Wing resident. Before moving to your city, she also worked on the early Riverboat novels. The Lars Larson cabin was donated to the Wanamingo Historical Society in 1974 and a year later reconstructed on Main Street. It was built by Lars Larson and his son Edward in the 1850s. Lars Larson came to Wanamingo Township in 1856 from Chicago. He had emigrated from Norway in 1846. The widowed Larson farmed in Section 22 with his 18 year old son Edward. When Lars's health started failing, his 15 year old daughter Anna, who had stayed in Chicago, came to help. After Lars's death in 1857, she returned to Chicago. Anna later married Horatio Spafford, who wrote the words to the hymn "It Is Well With My Soul" after their four young daughters died in a shipwreck.
